Director's Note

Thank you for joining us tonight!

Based on a question I've heard several times, I'm guessing many of you are wondering why we would read a play set during a historic blizzard and choose to present it in the sweltering heat of midsummer. For me, the answer is actually pretty simple. This play is beautiful, and I believe that beautiful art can be enjoyed at any time of the year.

I think that what makes this play beautiful is the way it blurs the lines between reality and fiction and still manages to speak into our very real lives. While the characters themselves are exaggerations of reality, they share a snapshot of their lives and their hearts with the audience that is undeniably real.

From start to finish, this show has been a joy to create and present. The play itself gave us a wonderful foundation but also so much room for all of us to explore, invent, and become the world you are going to see tonight. I've had SO much fun working with each and every one of these talented actors. Not only are they all stellar performers, they are silly and caring people and were able to create a wonderful group even over this short rehearsal process. And beyond this, I so appreciated their constant willingness to step out of their comfort zones, to make strong choices, and to be on board with this show and this vision. I am very grateful to all of them.

Thank you also to my fantastic stage manager Annika, who on top of being organized, reliable, and mature, also made rehearsals so much fun (and also was everyone's favorite Hugh Jackman fan). And thank you to my mom (Meg) for supporting this project from the very beginning.

I am so excited for you to see this show and the incredible work these actors have done. Have fun in Deerpoint, and remember to bundle up!
